School Board budget vote slated for Monday

The School Board plans to adopt the School Department budget at its regular meeting on Monday, Jan. 12. Before the meeting, the School Board will hold its sixth budget workshop.

The School Board met on Tuesday for its fifth budget workshop, the first for the newly seated School Board members who were sworn in on Monday.

Video recordings of all School Board budget meetings and workshops are posted to the FY2027 Budget Revealed online resource, along with presented budget documents.

Superintendent Christine Boston and Chief Financial Officer Michael Limanni have reviewed the major revenue and expenditure changes with the School Board, including increases to wages and benefits, special education transportation and debt service costs, and decreases in building aid and the statewide education tax.

The proposed FY2027 budget would raise $69,825,409 from property taxes, a $6.4 million increase, and about $3.5 million above the estimated tax cap. Through the workshops, Superintendent Boston discussed budget scenarios, including a tax-capped budget and one that is $1.7 million above the tax cap. Boston said a tax-capped budget would require the loss of 20 full-time teaching positions and administrative reductions. If the budget were $1.7 million above the tax cap, it would require a reduction of 8 full-time teachers and administrative reductions, Boston said.

The workshop and meeting will be held in City Hall's Council Chambers. The workshop begins at 6 p.m. and the meeting at 7 p.m. They will be televised on DoverTV and online.

Central Avenue water main replacement before Council Wednesday

City Council to hold special meeting on 2026-2027 Council Rules

The City Council will consider awarding a $7,375,450 bid for the upgrade of a critical water main along Central Avenue at its first regular meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 14.

The new water main would replace the current 1888-vintage main from the Garrison Hill storage tank to Central Avenue via Abbey Sawyer Memorial Drive, and then continue south on Central Avenue to Broadway. The project cost would be offset by $4.3 million in grants. The Council will also consider an accompanying resolution to authorize construction oversight for $434,900.

Also on the agenda is a resolution that would authorize up to $60,000 to match donations for the 9/11 Memorial planned for the Cochecho Courtyards downtown. This topic was discussed at the City Council's Jan. 7 workshop.

The Council will also consider:

- Awarding a bid to repair and refurbish the city's athletic courts for $586,800;
- Accepting and expending a preservation grant for the Lowell Avenue historic Waterworks building, and an exotic aquatic plant control grant;
- Approving a license agreement for Airey Row on Central LLC to use parking spaces in the municipal garage;
- Authorizing the purchase of computer equipment through a state contract; and
- Authorizing the disposal of surplus property in exchange for EMS training.

Find the complete agenda online.

Before the regular meeting, the City Council will hold a special meeting to adopt its Council Rules for the 2026-2027 term.

The special meeting begins at 6 p.m., with the regular meeting starting at 7 p.m. Both will be televised on DoverTV and online.

The School Board met earlier in the evening and voted to elect Robin Trefethen as chair. The board also selected officers and voted on School Board bylaws.

The public inauguration ceremony, held in the City Hall auditorium, was led by master of ceremonies Don Briand and included the swearing-in of elected officials. The ceremony can be viewed here: <https://dovernh.viebit.com/watch?hash=NdZQJCExmX93kY7p>

The ceremony marked the official start of the new governing term for both boards.

Cook for the Books fundraiser to support Dover Public Library

Does Chef Evan Hennessey have what it takes to turn mystery ingredients into an extraordinary three-course meal?

Find out Tuesday, Jan. 27, at 6:30 p.m. during Cook for the Books, a fundraiser sponsored by the Friends of the Dover Public Library to support the library's ongoing renovation.

During the live cooking event, three-time Chopped champion Chef Evan Hennessey will prepare original dishes at his restaurant, Stages, using ingredients selected by public vote.

A watch party will take place from 6 to 9:30 p.m. at Chapel + Main, 83 Main St., Dover, with the live stream beginning at 6:30 p.m. The event will include appetizers, a light buffet, one cocktail or mocktail, raffles and a silent auction. A meet-and-greet with Hennessey will follow the cooking challenge at approximately 8:30 p.m.

Watch party tickets are $75 and may be purchased by cash or check at the Dover Public Library's temporary location at the McConnell Center or online at galabid.com/cook-for-the-books. Event sponsors and donors include Kennebunk Bank, Chinburg Properties, The Truette and Brady-Sullivan Properties.

All proceeds will go toward furnishing the newly renovated library spaces. Donations are also welcome and may be made through the Friends of the Dover Library's GoFundMe page at friendsofthedoverlibrary.org.

Hennessey, a Dover native, first competed on the television series Chopped in 2018. He opened Stages in 2012, serving progressive New England cuisine made with locally and regionally sourced ingredients. His honors include being named a James Beard Award semifinalist for Best Chef: Northeast and receiving the Award of Excellence from the Chaine des Rotisseurs for outstanding food and service. Stages has been named one of the top 100 best restaurants in North America by Opinionated About Dining for eight consecutive years.

For more information, visit library.dover.nh.gov or call 603-516-6050. The library has temporarily relocated to the McConnell Center during the renovation of its main building. The Children's Room is located in Room 305, while adult and teen services are available in the McConnell Center cafeteria. Library hours are Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.; Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; and Sunday, noon to 4 p.m.

To hear more about the event and learn more about Evan Hennessey, tune in to next week's Dover Download podcast, where Deputy Manager Christopher Parker chats with Hennessey about his local roots, his career, and the upcoming Library fundraiser.

Community Power rates increase Feb. 1

The Community Power Coalition of New Hampshire's (CPCNH) default "Granite Basic" residential electricity supply rate for Dover customers will be 14.663 cents per kilowatt-hour (kWh), effective Feb. 1, 2026, through July 31, 2026. The new rate is a 1.244-cent increase above current kWh rates.

The coalition's board of directors adopted the new rates at its Dec. 18 meeting based on CPCNH's cost of service, which includes a community reserve adder sufficient to retire financing obligations in 2026, CPCNH announced in a press release.

Eversource's default electricity supply rate for the same period has not been set by the New Hampshire Public Utility Commission. In Eversource's PUC filings, the firm seeks to increase its supply rate by 0.107 cents to 11.303 per kWh.

In addition to electricity supply rates, there is an electricity delivery rate component that is charged to all energy customers by the utility provider, regardless of a customer's energy supplier. Eversource is the utility provider for Dover residents and businesses.

Dover's energy customers may choose which firm supplies their electricity, including Dover Community Power, third-party options, and the utility provider, Eversource. The New Hampshire Department of Energy has a webpage to help customers shop for competitive energy power suppliers.

To opt in, out, or select a Community Power option with more renewable energy content, customers can:

- Use Community Power's online portal
- Call 1-866-603-7697 (POWR) or email Info@CommunityPowerNH.gov

Please note that it may take one to two billing cycles to reflect the change. To complete the change, customers will need their Eversource account number

About Community Power

The Community Power program is authorized under state law RSA 53:E. It allows municipalities and counties to aggregate retail electric customers to "access to competitive markets for supplies of electricity and related energy services" on a voluntary basis. The program is self-funded through revenues generated by participating customers and does not use taxpayer funds to cover program expenses.

Since launching in early 2023, Community Power has introduced more competition and product options to an increasing number of electric customers in New Hampshire. Customers can easily choose from options including 33%, 50%, or 100% renewable energy on a month-to-month basis and can move between Community Power, utility supply options, and third-party providers.

Planning Board to review, potentially adopt draft Land Use Analysis Master Plan chapter update

The Planning Board will review and potentially adopt the updated Land Use Analysis Chapter of the city's Master Plan at its meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 13. The Planning Board will receive a presentation on the chapter update, hold a public hearing, and provide final feedback before considering its adoption.

Throughout 2025, the Planning Department, in collaboration with a project Steering Committee and consultant Resilience Planning & Design, developed the chapter update for the Planning Board's consideration. Last adopted in 2015, the chapter serves as a roadmap to guide Dover's growth over the next decade in ways that reflect community values.

Dover is a growing city, encompassing nearly 17,000 acres of land, with a mix of historic downtown areas, emerging mixed-use districts, surrounding neighborhoods, large tracts of open space, and conserved land. The update examines current land use trends, community input, and development pressures facing Dover, and outlines a future land use strategy, map, and action items to support livability, economic resilience, and environmental stewardship.

Residents are encouraged to review the draft chapter and provide feedback at the public hearing. Feedback and questions about the chapter update can also be emailed to City Planner Erin Bassegio or by calling the Planning Department at 603-516-6008.

The meeting begins at 7 p.m. in City Hall's Council Chambers. It will be televised on DoverTV and online.

Jan. 10, 1656 — Dover's town leaders took steps to bring order and consistency to how land was distributed in the growing colonial settlement. At a town meeting, residents agreed to halt all new land grants, both to current inhabitants and to newcomers, until all previously approved grants were formally surveyed and clearly marked with boundaries. The town also agreed that each inhabitant should receive a defined share of common land, known as "commonage," in the areas where they lived. The town further decided that no new land grants could be made without the consent of every inhabitant. As a temporary measure, the selectmen were authorized to make limited additional accommodations for residents who requested them, but only until the end of February. After that point, the new rules would be fully ratified and enforced. However, the town's careful attention to fairness and consent applied only among colonial settlers. The meeting records make no mention of the Indigenous peoples who had lived on and used the same land for generations, nor do they recognize Indigenous systems of land stewardship or ownership. Like many New England towns in the 17th century, Dover operated under the colonial assumption that land could be claimed, divided, and governed without Indigenous consent or involvement.

Jan. 12, 1856 — Dover was hit by one of the most severe snowstorms residents had experienced in many years. Nearly two feet of snow blanketed the ground, and fierce winds piled it into massive drifts, some reaching five to six feet deep in places. The storm brought daily life to a near standstill. Railroad service, which had become a vital link for travel, mail, and commerce, was thrown into chaos. Trains were delayed or halted entirely, and movement in and out of the region was heavily restricted. Roads were difficult to pass, and snow removal relied almost entirely on manual labor, horse-drawn plows, and the sheer persistence of residents.

Jan. 14, 1884 — The Dover Public Library opens to the residents of Dover with 4,508 volumes and an author and title catalog. The librarian, Miss Garland, recalled opening day, "The work had been carried on incessantly up to within a few minutes of the hour of opening; but about five minutes before two, she sat down in a great depression of mind. Had it been worthwhile, and would anybody come? The clock struck two and the door creaked open. Three high school boys rushed up the stairs. Following them was a woman who had been sent by her sick son at home. Close behind her were more high school boys and some men. Then came a few ladies who had not wanted to push. In a few seconds the room was full. With very unsteady knees she rose to her work. "Ivanhoe" was the first book wanted. The mother of the sick boy went home with "Adventures of a Young Naturalist". Thus did the Library begin its ministry to the sick." There were 180 people registered and 160 took books that first day. A rousing success, the Dover Public Library recorded 2,300 borrowers during that first year and in its first decade of operation circulated over half a million volumes.

Jan. 10, 2002 — The City Council voted unanimously to authorize the demolition of the former River Street Public Works complex along the Cochecho River. The council approved a $60,000 purchase order for equipment rental and labor, with Community Services staff assisting to keep costs down. At the time, councilors described the vote as historic. Councilor Parks Christenbury called the demolition “the linchpin” of the long-envisioned waterfront project, while others noted that removing the outdated complex had been a long-standing priority. The demolition cleared the way for redevelopment of the city’s 33-acre waterfront parcel.

Learn how librarians became the unlikely spies of WWII

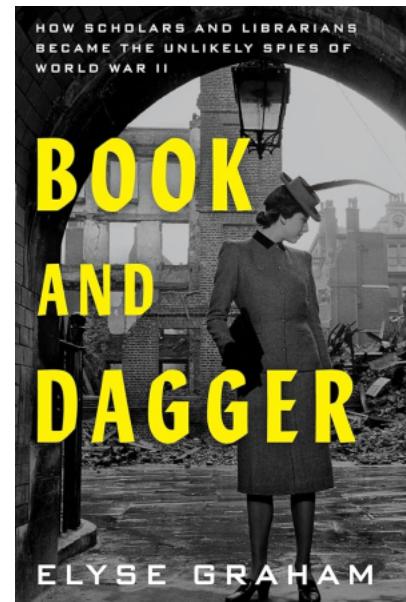

When you think about librarians it's usually in a quiet setting with a book in hand and an occasional "Shush!" as a warning. But that subdued stereotype and knack for finding information is exactly what made librarians excellent spies.

Author Elyse Graham will discuss her new book, "Book and Dagger: How Scholars and Librarians Became the Unlikely Spies of World War II", virtually at the Dover Public Library on Wednesday, January 21 at 7 p.m. The program is in partnership with Tewksbury Public Library. Register to receive a link to the live stream.

In her presentation, Graham will share the true, untold story of the academics who became Office of Strategic Services (OSS) spies, invented modern spycraft, and helped turn the tide of the war to defeat the Nazis.

At the start of World War II, the United States found itself in desperate need of an intelligence agency. The OSS, a precursor to today's CIA, was quickly formed—and, in an effort to fill its ranks with experts, they turned to academia for recruits. Suddenly, literature professors, librarians, and historians were training to perform undercover operations and investigative work—and these surprising spies would go on to profoundly shape both the course of the war and our cultural institutions with their efforts.

Graham is a historian, professor at Stony Brook University, and the author of three books: "You Talkin' to Me?", "A Unified Theory of Cats on the Internet", and "The Republic of Games".

This event is free and open to the public. For more information or to sign up, visit the library's website or call (603) 516-6050. If unable to attend, the program will be recorded and sent via email within 48 hours of the live stream.

NHDES offers emergency drought assistance

The New Hampshire Department of Environmental Services (NHDES) will reopen a program to help low-income homeowners experiencing water supply issues resulting from the ongoing drought. During this historic drought, nearly 250 residents have reported dry wells causing insufficient drinking water in their homes. In response to these widespread reports of dry wells, the Drinking Water and Groundwater Advisory Commission voted in November to approve a $1,500,000 grant from the Drinking Water and Groundwater Trust Fund (DWGTF) to re-establish the Emergency Drought Assistance Program (EDAP).

Following the driest summer on record, all of New Hampshire has been experiencing drought since August 2025, with several counties declared in extreme drought. Neither short- or long-term precipitation outlooks indicate drought relief in the coming months.

Drilling a new bedrock well can be very costly, creating a barrier for low-income households to access clean and safe drinking water when their wells are dry. Depending on household income and family size, EDAP will cover up to 100% of the total costs to mitigate drought impacts and provide reliable drinking water to qualifying residents.

Eligible costs under the program include rehabilitation or replacement of a residential well that is dry from drought, or, if feasible, the cost to connect the home to a nearby existing community water system.

To qualify for the program, applicants must provide income information and verification by a licensed New Hampshire well driller or pump installer that the well has experienced irreversible water supply issues due to drought. More information is available on the EDAP website. Private well-owners are encouraged to self-screen eligibility using the income limits provided in the application.
